EJERCICIOS

Hay-on-Wye, the town that is a bookshop.

On the border between Wales and England there is a small town surrounded by beautiful hills that is famous for becoming a role model against the rural abandonment that followed the Second World War. Here, as in many other parts of Europe, people left the countryside and moved to urban areas in search of a better job and a better life. Hay-on-Wye was a farming village that was becoming a ghost town.

But things went differently thanks to Richard Booth who, after he graduated at the Oxford University, decided to invest the inheritance of an uncle in trying to revive the fortunes of his native town. In the late '60s, he took a trip to the United States and decided to bring back to the UK thousands of volumes he found in the many bookshops that were closing down everywhere in those times. He was then ready to start the project that had been spinning through his mind: he opened his first bookshop of second-hand books in an old fire station and this was only the beginning of an amazing adventure. Mr. Booth began to collect all the books that others wanted to get rid of and his collection grew impressively, as well as his reputation. He rented more buildings left empty by those who were gone and kicked off an indirect urban regeneration: Hay-on-Wye was back to life.

Attracted by the novelty, by Mr. Booth's bravery and by the size of his business, people began to arrive from every part of the Kingdom to follow in his footsteps. Hay today has just about 1,500 inhabitants, but it counts as many as 26 specialized bookshops (thriller, music, art, cinema, poetry, children, etc.), some of which are extremely peculiar: welcome to the first Book Town of the world.

Literally, the paradise of books of all kinds: new, second-hand, ancient and rare. On the streets you can find shelves full of books kept in the open air for the passers-by, sometimes with a sofa next to them to enjoy a good reading and chill out. If you wish, you can buy them putting the money in the designated box (50 cents for a soft cover, 1 pound for a hardcover): these are the "Honesty Shops", as they are based on the trust in the honesty of the book lovers.
