AIRPORT NUMBERS FALL BACK TO 2005

1 Barcelona's El Prat airport may have a new terminal but with passenger numbers dropping this year to 2005 levels, it seems to be a long way from being able to fill its smart new facility. Four years ago, El Prat was the European top-10 airport that was growing the fastest but in 2009 it has become the airport among that select group that has lost the 5 most passengers.

According to the latest figures released by the state airport authority, Aena, El Prat saw a 6.4% fall in passenger numbers in September, taking this year's total number of passengers so far to a little over 20 million —a similar number to that reached in 2005 and far short of the 30 million target reached between 2005 and 2008.

10 Although the new T1 terminal has raised the passenger capacity of the airport to 55 million, the combined effects of the economic crisis along with the competition provided by Ave high-speed train link between Madrid and the Catalan capital has hit the airport revenue hard. El Prat saw passenger numbers fall by more than 6% in September 15 slight rise in numbers of 0.1% to 4,243,629. If the current trend in passenger numbers continues, El Prat will be hard pushed to beat the total number of passengers in 2005 of 26.9 million and unlikely to break the 30 million threshold.

The only silver lining for El Prat is that the other airports have also suffered drops in numbers, meaning that Barcelona is still the ninth largest European airport, a place it 20 occupied four years ago.

Xavier MIRÓ. Catalonia Today (November 2009)

1. In 2009, the number of passengers to El Prat...
  - a) declined to the same numbers as four years earlier.
  - b) increased to the top-10.
  - c) stayed the same as for the last four years.

2. In 2005, El Prat...
  - a) started to get smaller very fast.
  - b) was one of the top-10 European airports to expand.
  - c) was expanding its facilities very slowly.

3. Thanks to T1, El Prat can host...
  - a) up to 50 million passengers.
  - b) less than 50 million passengers.
  - c) more than 50 million passengers.

4. This situation is due to...
  - a)* cheap train tickets.
  - b)* the world economic crisis.
  - c)* both economic difficulties and competition.

5. The fall back in passenger numbers...
  - a)* affects other top airports, too.
  - b)* made El Prat drop to the 9th smallest airport.
  - c)* only affects Barcelona and Madrid's airports.

CAR SHARING, A REAL OPTION

1 Do you really need your own car? Many of us must be asking ourselves this question as we fork out ever-increasing amounts on tax, insurance, fuel and repairs, not to mention having to spend longer and longer trying to find somewhere to park wherever we visit cities such as Barcelona and Girona. The fact is that most of us like our own space as
5 well as the convenience of hopping into our means of transport whenever and wherever we want to. Nevertheless, in the current economic climate many of us are tightening our belts and as a result car sharing may yet become a more attractive option.

Several local councils already run schemes in which interested commuters can register to offer lifts or take advantage of others who are travelling to the same destination.
10 Access to the programme is via the council website and registration for the scheme is free of charge. At the same time, some commercial car-hire companies have not been slow off the mark to see the potential that the economic downturn could mean for their business. If you only use your car occasionally and your journey is not regular enough to coincide with others, then there is a car-hire scheme similar to the popular Bicing bike sharing
15 scheme that operates in Barcelona. Users pay the 30-80 euros annual membership fee and can use cars that have an average lifespan of two years before they are replaced, as well as some ecological cars.

Apart from saving money, car-sharing can also have a huge impact on the amount of pollution we create. Reduced vehicle ownerships results in lower greenhouse gas emissions,
20 as many people think more about each journey and use their bikes and walk more for shorter trips. In Europe, car-sharing is estimated to reduce the average user's carbon dioxide emissions by 40 to 50%.

Barbara LEONARD. Catalonia Today (June 2009)

1. Some people think car-sharing is becoming popular as a result of...
  - a) the low costs of tax and fuel.
  - b) the current economic crisis.
  - c) the difficulty to find a parking place.

2. Car-sharing is being promoted by...
  - a) town councils.
  - b) car drivers.

  - a) you have to pay a fee.
  - b) you need internet.
  - c) you have to have a car of your own.

4. Hiring a car at a commercial company is a good option...

- a) because it is free of charge.
- b) if you also hire a bike.
- c) if you do not use a car very often.

5. Car-sharing reduces gas emissions because...

- a) it increases the numbers of cars on the roads.
- b) people use more ecological means of transport.
- c) 40% of cars do not use carbon dioxide.
