PRUEBA DE INGLÉS (ESPECÍFICA)

KIDS ARE ALL RIGHT

Politicians proclaim that young people are both the promise of a better future and our biggest problem. ‘Teenage mums,’ ‘unemployable boys,’ ‘ill-educated malcontents’ are regular terms used by the middle-aged, middle class people who govern the country.

But the ‘millennium generation’ -aged 16 to 21- are a cause for celebration, according to a recent survey on their attitudes. They are liberal, open-minded, independent and ambitious. They want to run their own companies rather than work for others. They want to make money, but they also want happy marriages and children. They support Conservative but consider that voting doesn’t make that much difference.

One third will enter higher education and know that it is up to them to find a job; just one in ten thinks it is the Government’s responsibility to provide them with work. They know that there is no such thing as a ‘job for life.’ Unlike their parents, the millennium generation accepts change as a fact of life.
